

ABSTRACT

A method and system comprising a processor and storage coupled to the processor are provided. The storage contains elements of metadata belonging to a plurality of schemas. Mappings between the elements of metadata that comprise functional expressions executable by the processor relate the elements of metadata. Methods for validating and updating the mappings when one of the plurality of schemas change are also provided.